

Backyard Composting

April 22nd, 2021

1:30-2:30

Join us to explore the basics of composting. We'll delve into some useful backyard tips and tricks, as well as explore examples of starting a composter at low cost with cheap, reused or locally found materials.

Learning Objective:

- The basic of home composting and how to maintain a healthy composter through Alberta's four seasons.
- Examples of low cost and easy to maintain backyard composting systems, how to build your own and where to find other cheap local options.

Speaker:

Alex LaForce, BSc. from UBC in Natural Resource Conservation and SFU Diploma in Spatial Data Analysis. Alex has been facilitating and teaching holistic experiential-based environmental education since graduation and composting and gardening since before he can remember. As the Sustainable Communities Youth Outreach Coordinator at The First Nations Technical Services Advisory Group (TSAG) he is building a youth education program focused on bringing accessible examples of recycling, waste diversion, composting and gardening to on-reserve school campuses throughout Alberta.

Target Audience:
Anyone wanting to enhance an existing garden space with soil enriching compost, and everybody wanting to reduce their environmental impacts by diverting food scraps from the landfill using a backyard compost pile!
