

Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS)

May 1, 2025

1:30-3:00pm MDT

SIDS is very sad and has a deep impact on parents - and a wide circle of family, friends, whole communities. SIDS seems mysterious but there is a standard investigation with the Medical Examiner we will describe. We will make suggestions - but need your help - in understanding if all international recommendations to reduce the risk of SIDS apply to First Nations Communities, which recommendations are most important and how we can work with First Nations to ensure fewer babies die.

Learning Outcomes:

- How are sudden deaths investigated and what have we learnt from the investigations about SIDS in First Nations in Alberta and around the world
- What are the international guidelines and how have they been received different countries
- How can we help First Nations parents apply relevant parts of international guidelines in caring for their infant in Alberta

Speakers:

Ian Mitchell, Professor Emeritus, Paediatrics, University of Calgary, member of SIDS Calgary Advisory Board

Christine Troskie, Final Year medical student, University of Calgary, member of SIDS Calgary Advisory Board

Target Audience: Parents and anyone involved in care of infants
