

Accessing Support Through True North Aid: Supplies & Community-Led Initiatives Funding

May 21, 2026

1:30-3:00pm MT

Learn how True North Aid supports northern and remote Indigenous communities through essential supplies and funding for community-led initiatives. This session will walk through our programs, how to access support, and what we look for in applications. Participants will gain a clear understanding of how we work alongside communities in a respectful, relationship-based way.

Learning Outcomes:

- Understand the types of support available through True North Aid's essential supplies program
- Learn about the Community Initiatives Program and how to apply
- Gain clarity on the application processes, timelines, and what makes a strong request
- Understand how True North Aid works in partnership with communities

Speakers:

Lisa Mazzocato is the Director of Operations at True North Aid. She works directly with community partners across the country to provide support in any way True North Aid can. Lisa began as a volunteer with True North Aid in 2017 and transitioned to a full-time role in 2023. Lisa brings extensive experience in operations and program coordination, with a strong focus on relationship-building and supporting community-driven priorities

Target Audience: Community leaders, program coordinators, educators, and organizations in northern and remote Indigenous communities who are interested in accessing support through True North Aid
